Artist of the Month

SUMMER EXHIBIT: A RETROSPECTIVE OF PATRICIA BROWNE (1937-2011)

Our featured artist for July and August is the late Patricia Browne. A native of England, she lived in the United Kingdom until adulthood. She studied at the Ipswich University School of Art and the Royal College of Art in London, where she received several degrees. She was also the recipient of numerous artistic awards in England and the United States after moving to New England in 1974. Her work is included in many private, corporate, and Museum collections in the United States and Europe. The majority of her work was as a watercolorist. Her subjects included the natural world, homes, porches, barns, and animals. Pat painted for everyone. She believed art should be affordable and offered many small originals at reasonable prices. She participated for many years in the Open Studio Tours and Artists in the Country and gave art lessons in her home and at various institutions. She was supported and loved by many people in our local communities of Chaplin and Hampton where she lived for many years, but particularly by her students. She was full of warmth, wit, and grace.

MEMORIES – The CAR CAMPER

A few years and another two kids later we learned a few things along with some camping nuances. . We traded in our very small sports car for a very large station wagon. We even figured out how to make it into bunk beds with a sheet of plywood. We continued our quest to see pretty much every kiddie park in New Hampshire where no matter when we went we would have rain the entire time. Most of the time we didn't really care. It was just another adventure, but sooner or later even the best of dispositions give way and we just couldn't take it anymore. That's when we found a Sears store & bought a nice large cabin tent and used a credit card for the very first time. We had been getting soaked for three days and in a packed car with three kids & a dog it was just too much. We had also found this beautiful crystal pendant beside the road & enjoyed how pretty it was dangling from the mirror. We found out much later that crystals can be very bad luck if they are cursed or some such nonsense, which we decided ours most definitely was.

We could hardly wait to become actual campers. At that point people where I worked were planning their vacations around mine and where I was heading so they could go in the opposite direction at some other time. Apparently they didn't like rain or NH. Our first trip out was, yes again, to N. H. and yes, of course it rained all three days. If you've ever been in a tent you know you can't touch the insides of the walls in the rain or it will cause it to leak. This was of course a total come-on to the kids who drew faces & watched them start to cry. It was bittersweet that they were the ones crying when they realized how wet they were getting. The final straw was when we were awakened at 2:AM by the campground staff telling everyone to pack up ASAP and get out because the river was fast rising & flooding the camp. Turns out there's a ton of stuff to pack up with a tent family but it was all chucked willy nilly into the station wagon & we were told to follow the rest of the campers to the nearby airport where we would be safe. When we got there, however, no one was around to tell us where to go so we just rode around in circles looking for a place to stop until we realized we were actually on the runway. That did it. We headed for Connecticut instead, and on the way that beautiful aforementioned crystal was thrown out the window!
