Artist of the Month – Paul Winfrey

Paul started painting in school and was always encouraged by his mom. He uses watercolors and satin acrylic poster paint. Using photos from magazines and books he creates his fanciful fish.

Paul has always been a fisherman. He enjoyed fishing aboard a charter boat in Maine on the Shamrock. In South Carolina he mostly fished from shore, and in CT for strippers, carp, trout, and small mouth bass. In school Mr. Eccleston taught Paul about painting. Since high school Paul considers himself self-taught through TV shows. He learned from Guy Harvey about salt water fish, and Bob Ross who excelled in scenery lakes and oceans.

Paul's brother Charlie says while its true Paul may not be able to ride a bike, drive a car, or learn mathematics, he does know a lot about fish and animals. He learns from marine and art shows on TV. His cousin (who he has dubbed Ellie) is proud of his diligence and enthusiasm for everything fish. Paul has had art shows at Uncas on the Thames and Harkness State Park. He has artwork on display for years in the Commodore Room and Captains Quarters at the Groton Regency where Paul resides.

MEMORIES – Our First Camping Adventure

When you're young and have children there is never enough time or money for anything so you learn to make do, compensate, figure it out. This was when we decided on the spur of the moment we wanted to go to Niagara Falls for our very first "family vacation". Without a thought we packed up our 6-week-old son and our 65-pound dog into our very small sports car and off we went. We figured we would get there in one day, visit and then go home the next day therefore only needing a motel room for one night. Talk about naive.

In those days (60s) there were no cell phones, no GPS. The only way you found a destination was with the old-fashioned paper maps that were not always accurate (and to this day I can't read). This of course was our only choice. We made it to the state of New York before we managed to get off course and were nowhere near our destination. By that time it was getting dark & there were no motels in sight, so finding a place to stay before it got dark was a priority. Turned out there was a lot of farmlands in the area and we spotted a large empty field bordered with woods and we just pulled in where we could get slightly out of sight. Of course we hadn't planned on camping so aside from the PB&J sandwiches and snacks there were no needed amenities. Dog and baby were no problem. We had at least thought ahead on that one.

Just before it got really dark a very disgruntled bib-jeans wearing and mean looking farmer arrived and asked what we thought we were doing in his field. We explained our dilemma and he took on a whole new attitude when he saw we had an infant with us. He gave us permission to stay the night provided we left at first light and even told us how to get back on the right road. He also mentioned there was an animal farm down the road if we wanted to visit it.

Sleeping was a problem because of the very small car. I slept across the seats with the gearshift up my butt and my hubby slept with the dog underneath the car. All night we could hear the noises from "the animal farm" and the dog kept pacing and mumbling. Needless to say it was a sleepless night.

In the morning we were on the road at dawn to find breakfast and the first thing we saw was a billboard advertising the "animal farm" which was only 25 miles down the road. What? Twenty-five miles? But we heard them all night!! Apparently what we heard were bears, real wild bears not zoo bears. No wonder the poor dog was mumbling!!

Finally we did find Niagara but were foiled once again by distance and by the time we got there it was midnight and that (in those days) is when they shut off the lights, so we never did to this day actually get to see Niagara Falls. This time we did find a motel for the rest of the night and couldn't wait to beat feet home the next morning.
